

Durasein CEU training program

Hello!

Durasein is an approved provider of the Continuing Education System for the American Institute of Architects (AIA-CES) and the Interior Design Continuing Education Council (IDCEC.) The AIA and IDCEC recognize that continuing education in architecture and interior design is essential to advancing and improving the professions. Architects and Interior Designers need continuing education to maintain competency, prepare for the future, fulfill the continuing education requirements for their AIA & IDCEC memberships, and frequently, to renew state licensure. As an approved provider, Durasein and its partners are able to offer architects and designers relevant training in the area of solid surfacing while providing needed continuing education credits for the architectural & interior design industries.

In an effort to fulfill our purpose of helping designers do the best work of their lives it's important that we keep pushing the limits of creativity, service and material innovation as well as provide the continuing education that you deserve in order to achieve your best work. To support this cause our CEU program offers six approved classes that are all Health, Safety, & Welfare (HSW) rated:

- Solid Surface - Fundamental & Applications
- ADA for the Solid Surface Industry
- Vertical Solid Surface Installation
- Healthcare Applications for Solid Surface
- Solid Surface Thermoforming
- Solid Surface & LEED

For more information about our Continuing Education offering, please visit www.duraseinusa.com and contact your local Durasein representative.